Claim Rejections - 35 USC §102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless --

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-6 and 8-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(e) as being anticipated by U.S. Patent Application Publication #2002/0111864 to Ukai et al. ("Ukai" hereinafter). Ukai teaches a method for issuing a coupon through an automatic transaction apparatus that performs a predetermined transaction interactively with a user, the method comprising the steps of: (a) storing coupon descriptors (see figure 2A) and output medium identifiers (see figure 2B) in an associative manner, the coupon descriptors each containing different coupon information, the output medium identifiers each specifying at least one of a plurality of recording media used (cell phone, smart card, PDA, paper) for coupons; (b) selecting one of the coupon descriptors as instructed by the user (404 in figure 4C); (c) identifying which recording medium to use as an output medium for the selected coupon descriptor, by consulting the output medium identifier associated with the selected coupon descriptor; and (d) outputting the coupon information in the selected coupon descriptor to the identified recording medium, thereby issuing a coupon to the user (see paragraph 32).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC §103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103 as being unpatentable over Ukai in view of U.S. Patent Application Publication #2002/0038239 to Hasegawa et al. ("Hasegawa" hereinafter). Ukai teaches the features of the invention, but does not teach a password controlled electronic coupon. Hasegawa teaches that a password may be used on an electronic coupon to secure the value of the coupon, and ensure that only the intended recipient can use it. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide a password on a coupon as taught by Hasegawa in the system taught by Ukai because the password prevents unintended recipients from gaining access to the value of the coupon, for example when it is transmitted over an insecure medium such as e-mail in Hasegawa or via wireless technology as taught in Ukai.
